Author and Originator: Sean Gilmore Affiliation: Arden Edge Capital · Napa Valley Art Institut
Email: sean.gilmore@ardanedgecapital.com Date of this record: 29 May 2026 Working location:
Personal workstation, OneDrive-backed, Windows 11

1. Purpose of this record

This document is a contemporaneous record of original creative and intellectual property authored by Sean Gilmore on and prior to 29 May 2026, in connection with two interlocking projects:

- Napa Valley Art Institut ("NVAI") — an ultra-luxury cinematic immersive digital gallery, primary residence at napavalleyartinstitut.com (acquisition pending production deploy)
- Montparnasse — a literary biopic / narrative nonfiction book project, conceived as a recast of an existing 220-page Exposé authored by Richard Triberg

The record is created so that, in the event of a dispute over authorship, conception, or commercial origination of either project, a dated and itemised account of Sean Gilmore's original contributions exists and can be authenticated by independent means (file timestamps, git commit hashes, OneDrive sync logs, AI session transcripts).

2. Material provided to the author by third parties

The following is the entirety of material received from Richard Triberg, who is the holder of the underlying Modigliani painting research and exposé:

1. The Extraordinary Life & Times of the Immortal yet Forgotten KIKI, Queen of Montparnasse — a 220-page Exposé authored by Richard Triberg, copyrighted via his literary agent, residing in a Dropbox folder (link pending transfer).

2. Seven (7) Breakout Reports — research/forensic/provenance documents, namely: - Breakout Report no. 1 — Artist Studio in Montparnasse by Richard Nevinson — 108-year-old history revealed - Breakout Report no. 2 — Forensic Excerpts: InsightART 2022, ARSMensurae 2011, ART-Test s.a.s. 2014 - Breakout Report no. 4 — Kiki's Memoirs — Foreword by Ernest Hemingway, 1928 - Breakout Report no. 5 — Kiki de Montparnasse — The Artist — 1922–1929 - Breakout Report no. 6 — Appraisal 2013 by Modigliani Expert, filed Prague Municipal Court — pre-Restellini - Breakout Report no. 7 — Longform Provenance - Breakout Report no. 8 — Kiki Highlight Reel — 95 pages
3. Three (3) transaction documents: - Redacted Brokerage Agreement (Robert + Alexander + Richard Triborg), 4 March 2026 - Napa Valley Institut — Update #4, March 2026 - Redacted Mission Order — Institut Restellini, March 2026
4. A series of emails (referenced verbally by Sean Gilmore; content not relied upon for the platform design).

Nothing else has been received from Mr. Triborg. Specifically: no platform design, no brand identity, no software architecture, no spatial design, no visitor-experience design, no cinematic direction, no commerce model, no auction-house concept, no curated-meals concept, no narrative architecture for the book recast, no voice direction, no character composites, no chapter spine, no plot beats. All of the foregoing is the original creative work of Sean Gilmore.

3. Inventory of original creative work — NVAI platform

The following is a categorical inventory of work conceived, directed, and produced by Sean Gilmore (with AI-assisted code generation operating under his direction). Every item below pre-dates 29 May 2026.

3.1 Platform conception

- The concept of an ultra-luxury cinematic immersive digital gallery as a sales channel for fine art held under non-disclosure
- The brand name Napa Valley Art Institut (French spelling, no trailing 'e') and the production domain napavalleyartinstitut.com
- The brand mark and logo placement (top-left of the cinematic home page)
- The single-business model: cinematic gallery + direct sale of paintings + Kiki marquee wing + auction events
- The decision to base the visitor experience at a fictional Villa Monticello — a Tuscan-style French chateau in Napa Valley

- The selection and roster of approximately twenty-eight paintings from collections held by NVAI and partners (Modigliani, Picasso, Chagall, Monet, Matisse, Kandinsky, Raphael, Da Vinci, Pollock, Bernard, Kahlo, and the marquee Modigliani–Kiki canvas)

3.2 Spatial architecture

- Visitor journey: Home aerial still → /entry slow cinematic zoom → /foyer → Staircase / Grand Hall / Garden Door
- Upstairs landing with three doors: Bernard chapel • Kandinsky's creepy room • Raphael studiolo
- Grand Hall structured as a programme of the evening: chateau ballroom → modern art party → digital curated auction house
- Garden patio with three thresholds: Parlor • Matisse pavilion • Grounds
- Grounds artist wings: Monet • Picasso • Da Vinci • Frida Kahlo
- The Parlor as bohemian bar with the Chagall sub-room behind it
- The Cabinet de Curiosités (Modigliani) and the Pollock Studio inside the Grand Hall
- The DDNDA as an optional document, never a gate — visitors are not blocked from entry

3.3 Cinematic and visual direction

- The use of 5K cinematic backdrop video as the spatial ground of every page
- The 400ms crossfade rotation of inspiration videos within each wing
- The slow-playback (0.35x – 0.6x) policy for the home aerial and the entry zoom, to create the immersive cinematic register
- Period-appropriate visual treatments per wing (Bauhaus geometry for Kandinsky; Renaissance studiolo for Raphael; bohemian smoke for the Parlor; Mediterranean light for Matisse; etc.)
- Typography hierarchy: Didot for cinematic titles, Garamond/Body for prose, monospace for placards
- Colour palette: gold (#C9A84C), ivory, midnight, oxblood — restrained luxury, no neon, no holographic, no Web3 aesthetic

3.4 The twelve artist wings — narrative architecture

Each wing structured as a multi-chapter biographical journey with chapter-by-chapter backdrop video swaps, hero painting cards, and prose I authored or directed: - Monet (4 chapters), Picasso (4 chapters across Bateau-Lavoir / Boisgeloup / Mougins), Chagall (3 chapters), Da Vinci (5 chapters), Frida Kahlo (4 chapters) - Kandinsky (5 chapters: Moscow → Munich → Russia → Bauhaus → Paris) - Raphael (4 chapters: Urbino → Perugia → Florence → Rome) - Émile Bernard (4 chapters: Pont-Aven → falling out → Egypt → late altarpieces) - Modigliani Cabinet (5 chapters: Livorno → Paris →

Cycladic/African masks → portraits → death) - Matisse pavilion (4 chapters: late start → Fauvism → Nice → cut-outs) - Pollock Studio (4 chapters: Cody → New York → Springs → the end)

3.5 The Kiki marquee wing

- The conception of Kiki de Montparnasse as the marketing funnel for the Modigliani–Kiki painting sale
- The 60-second burlesque dance lead-in
- The Edith Piaf-inspired ambient audio bed (/kiki/audio/piaf-ambient.mp3)
- The Moulin Rouge 45-second performance reel placement
- The eight archival photographs gallery
- The Kiki audiobook chapter list — narrated in English with a French accent
- The five Higgsfield prompts for cinematic Kiki vignettes
- The Kickstarter integration: "Help bring Kiki to the big screen," $1M goal
- The exposé pricing ($65)

3.6 Grand Hall and the auction house

- The conception of the Grand Hall as a French chateau ballroom dissolving into a modern art party and then a digital curated auction house — a three-act evening in one room
- The auction live page mechanics: the auctioneer's ask, bid-at-the-ask, current high, reserve tracker, custom bid, hidden auctioneer controls, acknowledgement toast
- The Zoom Server-to-Server OAuth integration concept (pending credentials)
- The auction event registry persistence model (JSON file storage)

3.7 Curated meal service

- The conception of pre-curated meal pairings for live auction events:
- The French Picnic at $495 — Excellent French Chardonnay, Beaujolais, Brie de Meaux, Comté 18-month, Ossau-Iraty, Jamón Ibérico 36-month, Jordan almonds, accompaniments
- The Three-Course Dinner at $795 — first course choice, Côte de boeuf or Bouillabaisse, Soufflé Grand Marnier
- The vendor research direction (K&L Wine Merchants, V. Sattui, Murray's Cheese, La Tienda for Jamón, Mouth.com, DoorDash Drive)
- The state-by-state wine-shipping legal model
- The operating model: NVAI concierge places vendor orders seven days ahead via single Stripe billing

3.8 The Atelier (book publication arm)

- The conception of /atelier inside NVAI as the long-form publication home for the Montparnasse book
- Chapter-by-chapter serialised release model
- Subscription gating (Bernard concierge tier)
- Cinematic chapter headers using the Circa Montparnasse video bed
- The integration with the Modigliani Cabinet page

3.9 Bernard AI concierge

- The conception of Bernard as the platform's AI concierge — institutional tone, voice-forward (ElevenLabs), action engine not chatbot
- The ElevenLabs voice selection ("George," British male) and the integration architecture
- The role of Bernard as the gateway for inquiries, "Make an Offer," meal-order placement, and Atelier subscription

3.10 DDNDA document flow

- The drafting of the Document Distribution & Non-Disclosure Agreement language
- The signature recording flow (timestamp, document version)
- The decision (corrected on 29 May 2026 from an earlier prototype) that DDNDA is not a site-entry gate but an optional dossier-access document

3.11 Commerce layer

- The Stripe Checkout integration architecture for the Kiki exposé, Kickstarter pledges, and "Make an Offer" routing
- The "Make an Offer" inquiry flow on every piece page
- The escrow account model (Prague) for painting sales as derived from the Brokerage Agreement

3.12 Brand identity

- The NVAI logo placement, sizing, and treatment
 - The cinematic colour grade and overlay opacities
 - The tagline registers ("Authenticated by the Prague Gallery. Available under non-disclosure.")
 - The cinematic copy throughout the site (chapter prose, wing introductions, scene placards)

4. Inventory of original creative work — Montparnasse book project

All of the following are creative-direction calls made by Sean Gilmore on 29 May 2026, in real time, with AI-assisted prose drafting under his direction:

4.1 Title, format, genre

- The working title Montparnasse (single word, no subtitle)
- The genre classification as narrative nonfiction biography — a literary biopic with disclosed composite characters
- The comparable-title shelf positioning: Just Kids (Patti Smith), The Devil in the White City (Erik Larson), Empire of Pain (Patrick Radden Keefe)

4.2 Voice and tone

- The narrator's voice as Richard Triberg in the first person
- The five-layer voice stack: 1. Holden Caulfield as the spine register 2. Hunter S. Thompson as the late-night fuse 3. Indiana Jones / The Da Vinci Code as the action shape 4. Hemingway as a historical character (not a stylistic model) 5. Fitzgerald as the period wallpaper for 1920s scenes

4.3 Structural architecture

- The dual-timeline parallel structure — every chapter holds Richard in the present and Kiki in the past
- The fade-in / fade-out mechanism triggered by specific verifiable facts about the canvas
- The discipline ceiling: nothing that could not actually happen — no conspiracy, no guns, real-world stakes only

4.4 The twelve-chapter spine

- Prologue: Europe, 1918–1922 (Fitzgerald wallpaper, no Richard)
- I. Bill — the phone call that began the four years
- II. The Red Pillow — the 109-year-old shared-studio discovery (Modi + C.R.W. Nevinson)
- III. Summer Rain — the July 1917 night the painting was made
- IV. For Richard — Find Her — Bill's funeral and the package Bill's widow hands Richard the next morning with the handwritten note For Richard — find her
- V. Bratislava — the Slovak owners

- VI. The Wildenstein Letter, 2012 — Marc was the curator then
- VII. Alba — the door opener at Restellini
- VIII. Marc — the face-to-face
- IX. March 18, 2026 — The Private Jet — the painting flies Prague → Le Bourget → Geneva
- X. The Geneva Freeport — the painting under particle physics
- XI. Four Days in Montparnasse — Richard walks the streets
- XII. The Certificate — Marc signs or does not sign; Camille calls

4.5 Characters originated by Sean Gilmore

- Camille Aubry — fictional senior scientist at Institut Restellini Geneva, the lab-side buddy / partner. Composite character. Fictional. Lives modern timeline only. Conceived 29 May 2026.
- The full character bible for Camille (temperament, training, role in the buddy-cop dynamic, her place in the final phone call)
- The dramatic treatment of Bill as the late mentor whose package is the inciting moment of Richard's modern arc
- The dramatic treatment of the period film director as the abusive antagonist of Kiki's 1916–1917 chapter (existence flagged by Richard verbally; dramatic placement and arc by Sean)

4.6 Plot beats originated by Sean Gilmore

- Bill's package — the brown paper parcel, the string, the handwritten note For Richard — find her, handed over by the widow the morning after a somber funeral
- The summer rain night in July 1917 — Modi watching Kiki from a corner of the Rotonde for two years, then a sudden rainstorm, the wine, the walk back to the studio on the rue de la Grande Chaumière, the pose, the crossed-hands gesture
- The Madonna of Montparnasse framing — Kiki positioned for the modern reader as the Madonna of her time, the Lady Gaga, the Elizabeth Taylor
- The Camille phone call ending — the book's last conversation is between Camille and Richard, not Marc's email
- The Kiki life arc — biographical chapter-by-chapter spine: Châtillon-sur-Seine, Paris childhood, modelling, the film director, the Modi obsession, Man Ray, the peak years, the memoir, the falling, the war, the hospital ward, March 1953

4.7 Thesis and emotional architecture

- The unstated thesis: the wreckage was the same, but the connection was above the pain — and that is what we have lost

- The parallel between Circa Montparnasse over-indulgence and modern over-indulgence (then: absinthe, opium, jazz, sex; now: Adderall, Instagram, OnlyFans, the dopamine economy)
- The historical backdrop weave (post-WWI Europe, industrial revolution, modernity in its infancy, the Lost Generation)

4.8 Disclosure architecture for the book

- The author's-note-on-sources front-matter convention
 - The chapter-by-chapter sources appendix convention
 - The composite-character disclosure for Camille Aubry
 - The reconstructed-scene disclosure for the summer rain and Bill's package

5. AI collaboration disclosure

The author used Anthropic Claude (Opus 4.7) as a writing and code-generation assistant during the working session of 29 May 2026. The role of the AI was:

- Code generation under Sean's direction for the NVAI software stack (Next.js + FastAPI)
- Prose drafting under Sean's direction for the Montparnasse creative materials
- Document assembly (PDF, HTML, markdown conversions) under Sean's direction
- Structural mapping and proposal generation under Sean's direction

The AI did not originate any of the creative or platform decisions inventoried above. Every conceptual call was Sean's. Every editorial decision was Sean's. Every revision was Sean's. The AI's role was equivalent to that of a human ghostwriter, junior engineer, and design assistant working under a single creative director.

This disclosure is made for authorship transparency and is consistent with the "Production Notes & Authorship Record" document of the same date.

6. Statement of ownership

All original creative work inventoried in Sections 3 and 4 above is the sole intellectual property of Sean Gilmore, owned and reserved under United States copyright and applicable international conventions.

The Modigliani painting research and the 220-page Exposé remain the property of Richard Triberg and are not claimed by this record. The platform built to present and commercialise the painting, the literary structure built to recast the Exposé, the entire NVAI brand and visitor experience, the Atelier publication arm, the Bernard concierge, the curated-meal program, the auction-house design, the cinematic visual language, and every named character composite, plot beat, voice decision, and structural call originated in Sections 3 and 4 are Sean Gilmore's original work.

No licence, transfer, or assignment of any of the foregoing is implied or granted by the sharing of these materials with Richard Triberg or any third party. All rights are expressly reserved.
